

2018 South Asia Book Award for Children's and Young Adult Literature
2018 Award Winners

Manjhi Moves a Mountain
 by Nancy Churnin; illustrated
 by Danny Popovici
 (Creston Books, 2017)

Manjhi quietly decided to dedicate his days to making life better and easier for his Indian community. Using only a hammer and a chisel, he made a significant impact that allowed his neighbors to more easily access water, medical care and better schools.

Outside In
 by Jennifer Bradbury
 (Atheneum Books, 2017)

Twelve-year old Ram survives on the streets of Chandigarh, India, winning games of gilli for money. After a game goes wrong, Ram darts deep into the forest, where he encounters a mysterious man, Nek, who creates art with scraps of metal and junk. Can Ram discover a way to keep Nek's sculptures safe?

You Bring the Distant Near
 by Mitali Perkins
 (Farrar Straus Giroux Books, 2017)

Perkins scoops up readers, traveling across oceans and through time to meet Raneer, Tara, Sonia, Anna, and Chantal as they create new lives in London, New York City, and Ridgeford, New Jersey. Learn what all three generations gain from each other, all in their own voices!

2018 South Asia Book Award for Children's and Young Adult Literature
2018 Award Winners

Manjhi Moves a Mountain
 by Nancy Churnin; illustrated
 by Danny Popovici
 (Creston Books, 2017)

Manjhi quietly decided to dedicate his days to making life better and easier for his Indian community. Using only a hammer and a chisel, he made a significant impact that allowed his neighbors to more easily access water, medical care and better schools.

Outside In
 by Jennifer Bradbury
 (Atheneum Books, 2017)

Twelve-year old Ram survives on the streets of Chandigarh, India, winning games of gilli for money. After a game goes wrong, Ram darts deep into the forest, where he encounters a mysterious man, Nek, who creates art with scraps of metal and junk. Can Ram discover a way to keep Nek's sculptures safe?

You Bring the Distant Near
 by Mitali Perkins
 (Farrar Straus Giroux Books, 2017)

Perkins scoops up readers, traveling across oceans and through time to meet Raneer, Tara, Sonia, Anna, and Chantal as they create new lives in London, New York City, and Ridgeford, New Jersey. Learn what all three generations gain from each other, all in their own voices!

2018 South Asia Book Award for Children's and Young Adult Literature
2018 Award Winners

Manjhi Moves a Mountain
 by Nancy Churnin; illustrated
 by Danny Popovici
 (Creston Books, 2017)

Manjhi quietly decided to dedicate his days to making life better and easier for his Indian community. Using only a hammer and a chisel, he made a significant impact that allowed his neighbors to more easily access water, medical care and better schools.

Outside In
 by Jennifer Bradbury
 (Atheneum Books, 2017)

Twelve-year old Ram survives on the streets of Chandigarh, India, winning games of gilli for money. After a game goes wrong, Ram darts deep into the forest, where he encounters a mysterious man, Nek, who creates art with scraps of metal and junk. Can Ram discover a way to keep Nek's sculptures safe?

You Bring the Distant Near
 by Mitali Perkins
 (Farrar Straus Giroux Books, 2017)

Perkins scoops up readers, traveling across oceans and through time to meet Raneer, Tara, Sonia, Anna, and Chantal as they create new lives in London, New York City, and Ridgeford, New Jersey. Learn what all three generations gain from each other, all in their own voices!

2018 South Asia Book Award for Children's and Young Adult Literature
2018 Award Winners

Manjhi Moves a Mountain
 by Nancy Churnin; illustrated
 by Danny Popovici
 (Creston Books, 2017)

Manjhi quietly decided to dedicate his days to making life better and easier for his Indian community. Using only a hammer and a chisel, he made a significant impact that allowed his neighbors to more easily access water, medical care and better schools.

Outside In
 by Jennifer Bradbury
 (Atheneum Books, 2017)

Twelve-year old Ram survives on the streets of Chandigarh, India, winning games of gilli for money. After a game goes wrong, Ram darts deep into the forest, where he encounters a mysterious man, Nek, who creates art with scraps of metal and junk. Can Ram discover a way to keep Nek's sculptures safe?

You Bring the Distant Near
 by Mitali Perkins
 (Farrar Straus Giroux Books, 2017)

Perkins scoops up readers, traveling across oceans and through time to meet Raneer, Tara, Sonia, Anna, and Chantal as they create new lives in London, New York City, and Ridgeford, New Jersey. Learn what all three generations gain from each other, all in their own voices!

The South Asia Book Award is given annually for outstanding works of children's literature which accurately and skillfully portray South Asia or South Asians.

2018 Honor Books

Maharani the Cow
by Christy Shoba Sudhir;
illustrated by Nancy Raj
(Tulika Publishers, 2017)

The South Asia Book Award is given annually for outstanding works of children's literature which accurately and skillfully portray South Asia or South Asians.

2018 Honor Books

Maharani the Cow
by Christy Shoba Sudhir;
illustrated by Nancy Raj
(Tulika Publishers, 2017)

The South Asia Book Award is given annually for outstanding works of children's literature which accurately and skillfully portray South Asia or South Asians.

2018 Honor Books

Maharani the Cow
by Christy Shoba Sudhir;
illustrated by Nancy Raj
(Tulika Publishers, 2017)

The South Asia Book Award is given annually for outstanding works of children's literature which accurately and skillfully portray South Asia or South Asians.

2018 Honor Books

Maharani the Cow
by Christy Shoba Sudhir;
illustrated by Nancy Raj
(Tulika Publishers, 2017)

Pashmina by Nidhi Chanani
(First Second, 2017)

Pashmina by Nidhi Chanani
(First Second, 2017)

Pashmina by Nidhi Chanani
(First Second, 2017)

Pashmina by Nidhi Chanani
(First Second, 2017)

Ahimsa by Supriya Kelkar
(Tu Books, 2017)

Ahimsa by Supriya Kelkar
(Tu Books, 2017)

Ahimsa by Supriya Kelkar
(Tu Books, 2017)

Ahimsa by Supriya Kelkar
(Tu Books, 2017)